

BLACK HISTORY MONTH FILM SCREENING SCHEDULE

African Americans: Marching to Freedom

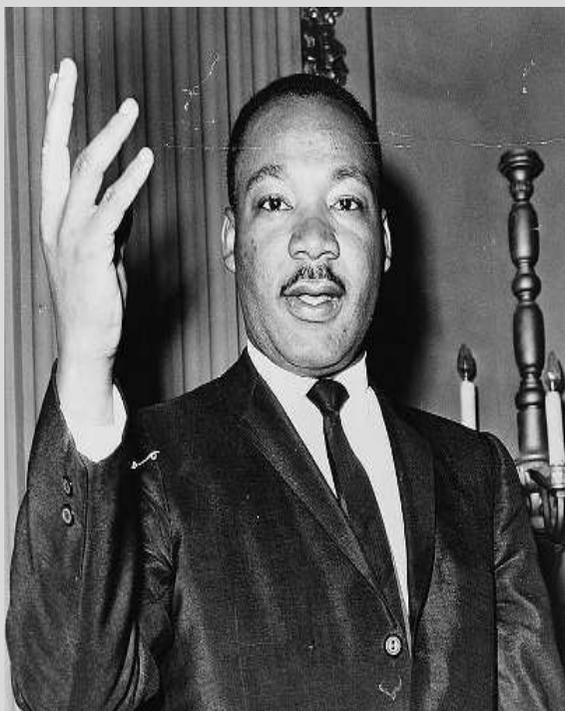

“The problem of the 20th century is the problem of the color line.” These prophetic words of W.E.B. DuBois in 1900 were to echo through a century of Jim Crow segregation, denial of voting rights, public lynching, police brutality, Black Panther militancy, urban riots, forced busing, and brave marches in the streets of Selma and Washington, D.C. This ABC News program anchored by Peter Jennings traces the rise of the Civil Rights movement – and of a black political consciousness, born on the tenant farms of the old South, that resulted in 1995’s Million-Man March (54 min).

Martin Luther King, Jr.: The Legacy

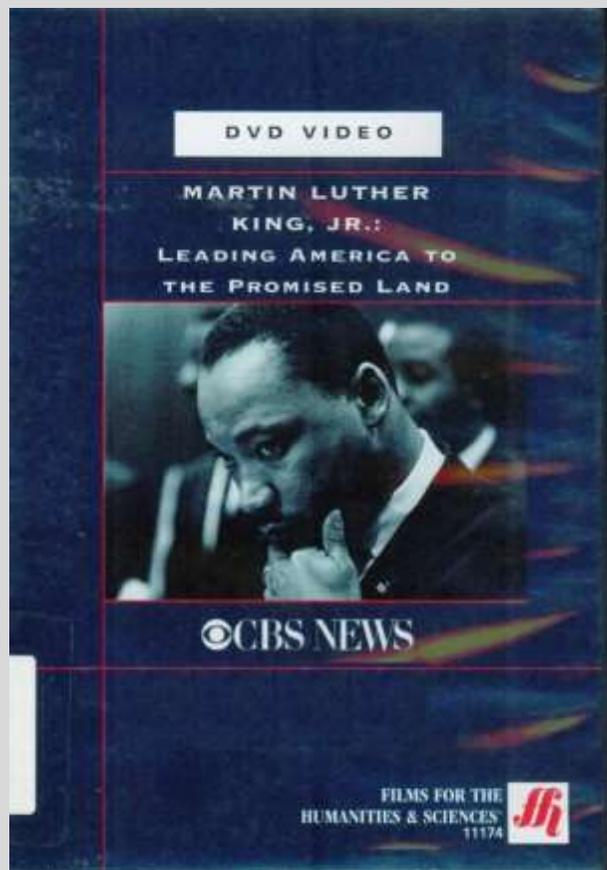

This program provides an intimate portrait of Martin Luther King, Jr., profiling his life as civil rights leader, and assessing the extent to which his dream of racial equality has been realized today. The program reveals King's character and retraces his historic campaigns, using rare archival footage and extracts from his momentous speeches, and recollections of friends and key figures in the civil rights movement, including Andrew Young and Ralph Abernathy. The program not only charts the success of the civil rights movement in securing black rights, but takes a bleak look at its failures: continuing poverty, unemployment, race hatred, and crime in the inner city. What emerges most from the program, though, is that King's prophesies were uncannily accurate and that his solutions are still profoundly relevant today. (78minutes).
